

Community Engagement

The Insurance Commission recognises the importance of contributing to the community in which it operates. We are committed to achieving this through delivering critical insurance services supported by community engagement initiatives designed to prevent incidents causing injury, improve the health and wellbeing of claimants, and to keep insurance premiums affordable.

In support of this, the Insurance Commission funds a community engagement program to support initiatives that directly relate to our core operations: road and workplace safety. This program offers grants that focus on injury prevention, rehabilitation, and recovery.

Our mission

To help our claimants promptly recover from injuries.

Strategic Outcomes

- Fewer and less serious injuries from motorists and Government employees.
- Claimants' recovery and independence is maximised.
- Insurance premiums remain affordable and are priced to meet the risk.
- We support the communities in which we operate and we deliver quality products and customer service.

The Insurance Commission will consider initiatives that contribute to the prevention of injuries insured by the Insurance Commission, and the rehabilitation and recovery of its claimants. This includes research that can be directly translated into practical solutions.

The Insurance Commission will consider initiatives, or research that:

- Prevent or minimise injuries/events insured by the Insurance Commission.
- Enable enhanced independence outcomes for people with acquired injuries.
- Facilitate early access to treatment or maximise recovery from injury.
- Return people with injuries back home, to work, and to the community.
