Message from the Chief Executive

The Insurance Commission of Western Australia (Insurance Commission) is committed to increasing awareness of access and inclusion issues and improving our services to the community.

Our Disability Access and Inclusion Plan (DAIP) 2025-2029 provides the framework and strategies to improve access and inclusion for people with disability who engage with our organisation and its services.

This Plan aligns with A Western Australia for Everyone: State Disability Strategy 2020-2030 which establishes the foundation for building a more inclusive Western Australia, empowering people with disability to participate meaningfully in all parts of society and to have the resources to achieve this.

This Plan has a focus on enhancing our service delivery to people with disability, placing greater focus on improving customer and stakeholder engagement.

The strategies outlined in this Plan complement our core function of managing insurance claims from people injured in motor vehicle crashes and at work. People injured in those circumstances often require support for access and inclusion, and this Plan sets initiatives that assist them, as well as other stakeholders.

This Plan has been developed in consultation with our employees and stakeholders, disability service organisations and the Department of Communities (Office of Disability).

I am pleased to present this Plan and look forward to reporting our progress against it.

Helen Robinson
Acting Chief Executive

Progress to Date

The Insurance Commission has implemented the following range of initiatives to improve access and inclusion for people with disability and our services to the community:

- Designed new office fit out to include:
  - universally accessible meeting rooms on each floor;
  - universally accessible toilets for people with disability on each floor;
  - extra wide internal corridors to cater for people in wheelchairs; and
  - installation of automatic swing and sliding doors for meeting and interview rooms to improve access.

Our Commitment

The Insurance Commission is committed to ensuring people with disability, their families and carers can access our services, facilities and information so they have the same opportunities, rights and responsibilities available to others in the community.

The Insurance Commission aims to:

- achieve eight DAIP outcomes by implementing strategies detailed in this Plan;
- promote awareness of disability and access issues amongst its employees;
- consult with stakeholders and the community to identify and develop strategies to remove barriers to access and inclusion; and
- enhance service delivery to our customers and stakeholders.

This DAIP provides a framework for the Insurance Commission to accommodate the needs of people with disability when providing services to the public and our employees to meet our requirements under the Disability Services Act 1993 (WA).

The Insurance Commission is committed to eight outcome and inclusion areas made up of the seven required by the Department of Communities and one additional area specific to the organisation. All outcome and inclusion areas along with strategies to achieve each are in Appendix 1 from Page 11 of this document.

Development of the Plan 2025-2029

Responsibility for the Planning Process

In 2024, the Insurance Commission undertook a review of its DAIP. Consultation with key stakeholders including an internal cross divisional group was completed. This consultation guided further improvement to access and inclusion and provided initial input into the new four-year DAIP 2025-2029.

The review process included:

- analysis of our previous DAIP 2018-23 achievements and improvements to be included in the new plan;
- focusing on the Insurance Commission's strategic plan and outcomes;
- considering the Insurance Commissions relocation to a new building in November 2024;
- research into contemporary practices in access and inclusion;

- seeking perspectives from the internal cross-divisional stakeholder group including representation from employees with disability; and
- feedback from the Executive Committee and employees.

The Insurance Commission also sought feedback from the community and external stakeholders using the following methods:

- Promoting the DAIP and inviting comments and feedback on the Insurance Commission's website and social media platforms.
- Key disability service organisations within the community were contacted directly to invite submissions/feedback on our Plan.
- Community members were invited to provide input into the continued development of the DAIP via an advertisement in the West Australian newspaper public notice board published on 20 September 2025.

Findings of the Consultation Process

Feedback received from our external consultation will be considered and incorporated into the plan where practicable. The final plan will be provided to external stakeholders who contributed to the consultation.

Communicating the Plan

A key outcome of this Plan is to raise awareness and commitment to disability and inclusion within the Insurance Commission. The communication strategy includes:

- communicating the DAIP at all staff and management forums;
- promoting it during the on-boarding process;
- publishing the DAIP on the Insurance Commission's intranet and external website; and
- upon request, making the plan available in alternative formats such as electronic, by email hard copy in both large and standard print, and audio.

Implementation

It is a requirement of the Disability Service Act 1993 that public authorities take all practical measures to ensure the DAIP is implemented by all officers, employees, agents and contractors. Employees will be made aware of their responsibilities through the internal communication strategies outlined. All relevant contracts and agreements will include the requirement for agents/contractors to report on their actions in relation to the Insurance Commission's DAIP.

An internal implementation plan detailing specific actions, timeframes and accountabilities has been developed to assist in the implementation of our DAIP strategies.

The Insurance Commission informed the public through a public notice in the West Australian newspaper that copies of the DAIP were available to the community and that the DAIP was published on the Insurance Commission's public website.

A copy of the DAIP will be provided to key stakeholders who contributed to the consultation process.
